What if you read this book and it finally clicked? How different can your life be if you stopped acting as the warden of your own prison? If for once in your life you finally gave it your all. Stopped being afraid. Acted with authority and authenticity. What would your life look like? Today I challenge you to look at yourself in the mirror and be honest. Stop making excuses and skirting the obvious. No longer running from, but to. You've got to be willing to answer your own questions. Be accountable to your greatness. No longer willing to accept mediocrity. No longer will you allow the mediocre path to be your map. No longer will weakness be allowed to exist in your life. The scraps you have settled for will not suffice. Royalty is your path. Discipline is your vehicle. You will from this moment forward write your own script, edit your role, and star in each scene as it plays out into what will now be an Oscar worthy performance. You've suffered long enough. And to your surprise, it's YOU to the rescue. Not luck. Not the government, not your spouse, or the economy. It's YOU. It's always been you. Up until now you willingly rode shotgun while mediocrity drove the car. The wait is over. You now realize that you don't need more money, or a new computer, or a different circumstance, or more education, or whatever the excuse has been. You don't need to be young, or old, or black, or white, or tall, or thin, or have more hair. You are all that is needed for success and greatness. Your freedom awaits you. Your conscious thought is now focused. The haze lifted. Personal freedom will not consent to fear. Choices no longer influenced by others. This very moment. This very second. This very instant is all we've got. Now you slow to smell roses. Hurry no longer whips at your back. The fulfillment of our dreams, our hearts, and all our desires stands before us with clear eyes. This moment, second, instant includes everything. Stop looking. Start having. Open the prison door. You hold the key. Reach inside and grab it. This book is the story of a real estate agent. From a broken home and dead broke, to self-made and living the Real Estate Good Life. Inside you will find stories from childhood through my early real estate career. I will describe in detail how I finally made the decision to treat real estate as a business instead of only as a job. The book then describes all of the specific marketing programs my team and I have implemented. Each designed specifically for return on investment. As a bonus, I've created a website to compliment this book. The website offers FREE copies of my expired listing campaign, Craigslist program, Shock and Awe listing lead generation magnet (I consistently average 100 listings at any given time), our database Proper Communication plan, my monthly newsletter program, and much more. The web address is www.realestategoodlife.com The business I've been fortunate enough to build allows me to work No Evenings, No Weekends, and No Fridays. And to top it off, I currently make ZERO cold calls! Thank you so much for your interest! Feel free to contact me directly anytime: bart@bartsellshouses.com.
